Intel Al Everywhere Takeaways: Executing On Roadmaps With Launch Of Meteor Lake and Emerald Rapids; Rolling Out Al Everywhere Strategy

Intel hosted its 2023 AI Everywhere event and highlighted how their silicon/ hardware/software solutions are helping bring Artificial Intelligence across data centers, cloud, edge, and client applications; Intel is pushing AI into every corner of tech. Intel confirmed its five nodes in four years process technology plan remains on track. The team is in a unique position to help unlock AI technology/ capabilities across the different end devices given its broad compute product portfolio, software solutions, extensive ecosystem, and R&D scale. Key takeaways in our view were: 1) As expected, this event was a platform for Intel to launch their latest generation of PC client product, Intel Core Ultra processor (Meteor Lake), which utilizes its Intel 4 manufacturing process node technology and integrates a neural processing engine in a single platform for AI processing capabilities. 2) The team also took this opportunity to announce the launch of its Emerald Rapids-based 5th Gen Xeon server platform (Intel 7 manufacturing) reflecting the team's ability to execute on their product and manufacturing roadmaps. 3) The team rolled out its' "AI Everywhere" strategy across client, server, and edge/client end markets. The team highlighted their commitment to getting to 100M+ AI-enabled PCs by 2025, 100+ ISVs, 300+ AI-accelerate features, and 3x AI apps. All of these AI-enabled capabilites (e.g. video editing, data analyze, crunching data, co-pilot/assistant, and creating graphics) are embedded in most of their recent PC client products which they believe will be in 80% of PCs by 2028.

• Executing well on PC and manufacturing roadmaps...launch of Intel Core Ultra Processor (Meteor Lake). From a product roadmap perspective, the team is on track with its near and intermediate product launches. The team officially launch their Intel Core Ultra processor (Meteor Lake) which is using Intel 4 process node/EUV litho and Foveros advanced packaging technology in a multi-chip die architecture that integrates CPU and neural processing engine in a single platform. The launch of Intel Core Ultra is another step forward to enabling AI software development within the PC ecosystem. Intel expects to have 300 AI accelerated features on the PC and are going to have 100 software partners such as Adobe, Dolby, and Zoom.

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

Investment Thesis

Given the market has time to gain confidence in Intel's ability to execute in its core compute and diversification initiatives, we believe INTC will be an underperformer relative to the group over the next 12-18 months, which drives our Underweight rating on INTC. It is important to note that our rating on INTC is a relative call vs. the group, for which we see a positive move over the next 12-18 months and where we see INTC stock participating, but we think at a slower pace.

Valuation

Our December 2024 price target of $37 is based on an 18-20x group multiple on earnings power of $1.90 in CY24E.

- Server product roadmap tracking with the launch of Intel's next-gen server CPU (Emerald Rapids) on Intel 7. Intel is executing well on its product/ technology roadmap with the launch of Emerald Rapids-based 5th Gen Xeon platform (Intel 7). The 5th Gen Xeon processor offers 21% average performance gain over the previous generation. Intel has built AI accelerators in every one of the processor's 64 cores which gives users 42% higher inference performance versus the previous generation creating a more cost-effective way to run generative AI models like LAMA 2. Servers based on 5th Gen Xeon will be broadly available starting 1Q24 from providers such as Cisco, Dell, and HPE. For its accelerator product family, the team displayed, for the first time in public, Gaudi 3 which will be available in 2024.
- AI processing capabilities in everything from client to server to edge/client end markets. Intel is leveraging its scale and ecosystem to develop and enable AI processing ability across different compute devices. An example is Intel Core Ultra processor (Meteor Lake), which enables power-efficient AI acceleration and local inference on your PC. The team touched on their partnership with Microsoft and how their Core Ultra AI PCs are running CoPilot and Windows Studios FX as well as workloads spanning video to image editing, audio transcription/summarization/translation, and vision teleconferencing capabilities on the PC.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Intel (Underweight; Price Target: $37.00)

Investment Thesis

Over the past 20 years, INTC has consistently underperformed the SOX index in each of the 3-, 5-, 10-, and 20-year periods. From a company fundamental perspective, the company is facing tough macro headwinds and a highly competitive compute environment exacerbated by lingering questions on its ability to execute on its technology/product/diversification road maps. And from a financial perspective, the stock should continue to be under pressure as the market continues to be concerned about the sustainability of dividend payments (currently ~$6B/yr commitment) as revenue/margins come under pressure during an industry downturn combined with the team's capital intensity target of ~35% of revenue during its "investment phase" in 2023/2024 crimping FCF (we estimate roughly breakeven FCF in 2023, consistent with management guidance). Given the market has time to gain confidence in Intel's ability to execute in its core compute and diversification initiatives, we believe INTC will be an underperformer relative to the group over the next 12-18 months, which drives our Underweight rating on INTC. It is important to note that our rating on INTC is a relative call vs. the group, for which we see a positive move over the next 12-18 months and where we see INTC stock participating, but we think at a slower pace.

Valuation

Our December 2024 price target of $37 is based on an 18-20x group multiple on earnings power of $1.90 in CY24E. We use a group multiple as we believe INTC should trade in line with its peers.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

- Intel executing better than planned on its technology/product road maps could result in gaining technology parity or better earlier than expected, which poses an upside risk.
- Shorter than expected industry downturn period could result in a quicker recovery in both PC and datacenter server CPU markets, posing an upside risk.
- Higher customer uptake for Intel Foundry Services (IFS) could help Intel realize quicker revenue scale, posing an upside risk.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Neutral [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Underweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Not Rated (NR): J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap equity research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
